Your College and You

Safety advice to help you safeguard students

Today the College launched its Professional Advisory, Safety in Learning Environments: A Shared Responsibility. We've created a "4Rs for safety" framework to help to inform your professional judgment and to recognize responsibilities and dangers, respond professionally, report incidents properly and reflect to prevent future occurrences.

You are invited

Join College Chair Liz Papadopoulos, OCT, and Registrar Michael Salvatori, OCT, at the Annual Meeting of Members on June 6. Keynote speaker and lawyer Raj Anand will talk about accountability, transparency and ethics and members will have an opportunity to ask questions about the College.

Reflect on draft AQ course guidelines

We'd like your feedback. Several Additional Qualification course guidelines are posted in draft on the College website including Pre-School Education for Children Who are Deaf or Hard of Hearing, Teaching Students With Intellectual Needs (Giftedness), Religious Education, Languages, Grades 7 & 8, and more.

Fresh start contest

What goals do you have for the next school year? Better work-life balance? Ongoing professional learning? Improved time management? A healthier lifestyle to improve your energy? Tell Professionally Speaking what you need to enhance your professional identity and you could be featured in the September issue.
